

Call for Papers: Workshop „Macroeconomic policy in the Eurozone”

Date: 26 November 2018

Location: Vienna

Organizer: Department of Economics, Vienna University of Economics and Business and Agenda Austria

The workshop aims to gather local and international academics, students and researchers interested in the topic of macroeconomic policy in the Eurozone. Since the sovereign debt crisis of 2009 scholars and policy makers have made efforts to provide evidence-based recommendations for improving fiscal and monetary stability in the Eurozone and make it less prone to future crises. Following Brexit and the 2018 elections in Italy, it becomes clear that stability of the Eurozone is one of the key topics affecting political stability of the whole European Union.

We therefore solicit both theoretical and empirical papers in the following or related areas:

- Fiscal policy in the European Union/ Eurozone
- Monetary policy issues: zero-lower bound, Eurobonds
- Proposals for reforming the European Stability Mechanism
- Economic and political consequences of the debt crisis. Consequences of Brexit. Italexit approaching?

Other topics broadly related to the current economic situation and macroeconomic outlook for the Eurozone are also appreciated.

Prof. Isabel Schnabel (University of Bonn) will be the keynote speaker of the workshop.

Submission of papers: Please submit an extended abstract not later than September 15, 2018 to
